POPULAR SALESMAN DIES SUDDENLY OF APOPLEXY STROKE

Charles C. Windel, Portsmouth Grocery Salesman, Died Last Midnight At Central Hotel of Stroke Of Apoplexy.

Mr. Charles C. Windel, for eighteen years traveling salesman in this district for the Gilbert Grocery Company of Portsmouth, Ohio, died very suddenly at the Central Hotel at about 12:25 o'clock of a stroke of apoplexy.

Mr. Windel was 58 years of age and one of the most popular traveling salesmen in this district. For many years he had been calling on the local grocery trade and had built up a large personal following and patronage. He is survived by his wife and one son, Carl Windel, who with a brother, came to Maysville from Portsmouth Tuesday morning and removed the body to the Portsmouth home. Mr. Windel was a prominent member of the United Commercial Travelers and quite a prominent man in the city of his home.

On Monday evening he retired to his room in the local hotel feeling as well as usual, at about 9 o'clock. At about midnight he left his room and came to the office informing the clerk that he was feeling bad. He took some medicine and lighted a cigar. After sitting in front of the hotel for a short time, he again started for his room and after entering the main hall of the hotel and taking but a few steps, he staggered and fell to the floor. Dr. J. B. Taulbee, who lives in the Central, was called and gave the stricken man medical attention but apoplexy had stricken him and he died in a very short time.

The funeral will be held from the home at Portsmouth Thursday and burial will be made in the Portsmouth cemetery.

WORKS OUT THEORIES AS WARDEN OF JAIL

Induces Escaped Convicts to Return To Prison in Fearful Picture.

Major Gracie had faith in mankind, and he believed that kindly encouragement would achieve better results in dealing with convicts than harshness and brutality. In this he differed radically from Samuel Green, whom he superseded as warden of the state penitentiary at San Pedro. The major's lovely daughter, his secretary and pal, shared his views. He feeling for Daniel Craig, known as "Three Sevens" in the prison where he was serving twenty years for a murder of which he was not guilty, was not based upon theory, however, but upon sentiment and admiration.

The story is told in "Three Sevens," a stirring melodrama by Perley Poore Sheehan visualized by Vitagraph as an Antonio Moreno production, which will be shown at the Washington theater Tuesday night.

In escaping from the prison, with the aid of two tiny saws smuggled in for a convict who died in his cell before they reached him, Craig unintentionally brought about the release of five desperate and hardened criminals, as well as a number of others, willing, whom he felt had reasonable claims to freedom and another chance. He undo the injury done society by letting the five outlaws escape, and to retain and strengthen Joan Gracie's feeling for him, Craig resolves to devote himself to the recapture of the five. In carrying out this purpose he experiences a number of exciting adventures and often is close to death.

MURDER THEORY IS EXPLODED BEFORE CORONER'S JURY

Paris Butcher Took His Own Life With a Shotgun, Jury Is But Five Minutes Deciding After Hearing All the Evidence.

Paris, Ky., July 12. — At the inquest Monday into the cause of the death of George McCanness, the Paris butcher, who was reported as to have suicided by blowing his brains out with a shotgun on Saturday night, the coroner's jury rendered a verdict that the deceased came to his death by a self-inflicted discharge from a shotgun.

In spite of the rumor which has been in circulation since Saturday night that McCanness did not commit suicide and that it would have been impossible for him to have shot himself back of the left ear with a shotgun in his own hands, the testimony given at the inquest Monday morning showed that there was no one else in the house when the shot was fired, nor was there anyone in the yard at that time, according to the statement of Mrs. Fitzpatrick, a neighbor living next door, who was sitting on her porch at the time of the shooting.

Cleve Lewis, son of Ben Lewis, at whose home the shooting took place, testified that McCanness had been drinking and that he stated the afternoon before that he felt very despondent and had nothing to live for.

Mike Sweeney, a friend of McCanness, stated that two weeks ago last Saturday night, McCanness said to him that he would not be cutting meat much longer.

Coroner Rudolf Davis described carefully the location of the gun on the floor and with the gun in his own hand showed how it could have been set up with the stock in the corner of the wall in such a way that by simply pulling the trigger, the whole load would pass through the head. The jury was not out more than five minutes before returning its verdict.

MOTION TO DISMISS MRS. KABLER OVERRULED

Court Refuses to Free Woman Tried For Murder at End of State's Evidence.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 12. — The state at noon Monday rested its case in the trial of Eva Catherine Kabler for the murder of her husband, Daniel P. Kabler, with the exception of one witness who can not be heard until the middle of the week.

The defense will begin its testimony this morning.

Edward C. Stanton, County Prosecutor, announced that the freeing of Mrs. Kabler on the poisoning charge meant nothing to the state, as it never had expected to prove that Mr. Kabler had died from poisoning, but that death was caused by the stab wounds as charged in the second count of the indictment.

Judge Bernon overruled a motion of Mrs. Kabler's counsel to free Mrs. Kabler after the state had concluded its testimony.

The remaining witness to be called by the state is Dr. P. A. Jacobs, the County Coroner, who is expected to testify that Mr. Kabler died from effects of the stab wounds.

A motion by Attorney William J. Corrigan for Mrs. Kabler, that all testimony relating to poisoning be taken from the jury was overruled by Judge Bernon on the ground that it tended to prove the conspiracy charge, also premeditation and deliberation in the charge of murder by stabbing.

For a fourth time, the state Monday produced witness who testified that Mr. Kabler asserts Mrs. Kabler had him stabbed.

WORLD LOOKED TO AMERICA, SAYS PREMIER LLOYD GEORGE

British Premier's Endorsement of President Harding's Peace Conference Cheered By House.

London, July 12. — President Harding's message looking to the calling of an international conference for the limitation of arms has been received with the utmost pleasure by Great Britain, Lloyd George, the Prime Minister, said in the House of Commons Monday.

Speaking on the subject of the American communication, the Prime Minister said:

"I need not say that we welcome with the utmost pleasure President Harding's wise and courteous initiative."

The House cheered this statement, and the Premier added:

"In saying that I speak for the empire as a whole."

The Premier said China would be treated as an independent in the conference on Pacific affairs.

"The world has been looking to the United States for such a lead," Lloyd George said, in referring to President Harding's message.

"I am confident that the House will esteem it an act of far-seeing statesmanship and will wholeheartedly wish it success. No effort will be lacking to make it so on the part of the British Empire, which shares to the full the liberal and progressive spirit inspiring it."

Colonel George Harvey, the American Ambassador, was in the gallery of the House to hear the Prime Minister's statement.

Lloyd George began his statement by referring to the Anglo-Japanese treaty. He said the Japanese Government took the view that no notice of denunciation of the treaty had been given and that his view also was held by Lord Curzon, the Foreign Minister. The matter was referred to the Lord Chancellor, the Prime Minister declared, who, after a consultation with the law officers of the crown, held that no notice had yet been given and that the treaty, therefore, remained in force until denounced.

It was, however, Lloyd George said, the desire of both parties that the agreement be brought into complete harmony with the covenant of the League of Nations.

BUILT BETTER!

Lasts Longer
Costs Less to Operate

Is this a time to be letting up on the efficiency of farming? A thousand times No! That would be yielding to a penny-wise, pound-foolish policy.

Yield is the big thing today. A certain yield from the land must first pay the fixed expenses—such an investment in land, interest, taxes, or rent, depreciation on equipment, etc.—to break even. For profit, the yield must go higher.

There comes the mission of good, reliable, time-saving machinery—the kind that's built better, lasts longer, and costs less to operate. That's the kind of

OUR POLICY:

To support such measures as are unquestionably for the good of Mason County as an entire community, rather than such propositions as are in favor of the individual interest, or of one section as against another. And likewise to earnestly and consistently oppose all things that are not for the good of the county as a whole.

OLD RUGGLES STANDS THE TEST.

Campmeetings a half century ago were flourishing all over the country but today they are passing rapidly until there are but a few which have been able to stand the test of time and remain.

Among those remaining and ranking in the first line is Old Ruggles where 'neath the stately trees each year there gathers members of families from Mason, Fleming and Lewis counties. These same families were represented in the campers of a half-century ago.

There is something about old Ruggles that draws them back every year. It was 'neath these great old trees that men and women, now old in years, did their "sparking" and it was in the old tabernacle that many first were turned from the error of their way to a better life.

Old Ruggles flourishes on and will continue to flourish so long as it continues to hold a place in the hearts of the people.

It was quite fitting that the directors of this campmeeting selected "Lane Inn" as the name for the new rooming house just erected on the camp grounds, in honor of the late I. M. Lane. It was this same I. M. Lane in whose heart there was a great place for Old Ruggles and who left nothing undone, that he could do, to make the campgrounds more attractive. We have another name in mind to suggest to the directors for the next building erected.

PREPARED TEACHERS.

Maysville and Mason county school teachers are now, while the school children are enjoying their vacation, working hard in the local normal school the better to prepare themselves for their work next year.

Teachers have long realized their need of better preparation and the executives of our educational systems have also realized such a need but the salaries paid the teachers have been so meager that it was almost impossible for the teacher to attend a normal school at his or her own expense.

The arrangement made by the City and County Boards of Education at this place this year to furnish our teachers with a normal course without expense to them, is a most laudible one and our schools are most certain to profit by the action of the two boards.

It has only been in the past two or three years that the school teachers of Kentucky have come into their own and have been given a chance. With increased salaries for all teachers, a free normal course and better school room conditions, we may expect greater things from our schools and as a consequence better citizens for the future.

COMING OUT OF SOFT TIMES.

The Silent Partner, one of the highest class little magazines published in America, is credited with the editorial squib, "We are not having hard times, we are just coming out of soft times," which has gone around the nation.

There is more in the squib than a mere sentence. It is all truth—whole truth and it is just dawning on the people that we are leaving the soft times of the war days and getting back to something like normal.

Members of the Maysville City Council displayed good common sense when, on Monday evening, they withheld the presentation of prepared ordinances increasing the salaries of certain city officials. While it may be that these officials have not received salaries sufficient during the war period, we must remember that we are coming out of those soft times. The business of increasing salaries just now should be gone at most cautiously. It must be remembered that salaries are being "increased" downward so far as the majority of the common people are concerned.

THE FALL OF CLOVES.

Many and diversified are the commodities which caused the downfall of import and export merchants who speculated and were caught with big stocks when the slump in prices came. An old shipping man was airing his opinions of the world in general during those disjointed times and the merchants came in for their share of criticism. "I can hardly think of a single article of commerce that some one of these fellows didn't get into trouble with," he said. "Some of them were loaded up with coffee, some of them with rice, some with canned salmon and condensed milk but the worst case I've ever heard was that of Blank & Co. Who but a blithering idiot would load up with cloves as the country really began to get dry?"—Wall Street Journal.

GOOD ADVICE FOR ANY WEATHER.

"Don't Worry, Fret or Stew."

That was one of Dr. Guittard's "Don'ts For Hot Weather" published in the Public Ledger a few days ago. It strikes us as good advice for any sort of weather and if more of us would follow the advice of the good Doctor we would have less use for the Health Department and physicians and there would be very little doing in the courts of our land.

Much of the troubles of all kinds are because of worry and there's no one can give any good reason for spending one single moment in worry about what is, has been or is expected to be.

The happiest and most successful man is he who follows the Doctor's hot weather advice all the year round.

Councilman Davis' suggestion that subways or elevated crossings be erected at all of the East-end cross streets to protect the pedestrians on the East Second street speedway was quite timely.

New York Letter

by
Lucy Jeanne Price

New York. — All pretenders to the contrary, Manhattan has the same appreciation for the frankness of the occasional spontaneous and unashamed nouveau riche that is shown by any other part of the civilized world. And so, it is with chuckles of real affection that the story of the gay Charles Crocker is told whenever his family's name comes to the fore. The occasion of his somewhat austere proper daughter, Mrs. Charles B. Alexander, —and her husband—having just opened their villa at exclusive Tuxedo for the summer is enough to call forth the reminiscence. Charles Crocker and his wife used to live in that home of quick fortunes — San Francisco — and later on when their daughter was well launched in coast to coast society, and they were established in New York. Mr. Crocker used to break forth to his wife right in all sorts of presences, "Don't you remember, Molly, the days we lived in a couple of rooms over the little store and held the cans to keep the rain from coming through the roof?"

The next time you hear someone pitying "those poor city dogs," pause a moment before you join in condemnation of the cruel owner who "keeps them cramped in a tiny apartment with no chance for air and exercise." Maybe he is more self-sacrificing in his action than you know. There is, for instance, William O. Conway! He's the type you rather fancy living in a smartly done, luxurious bachelor apartment on or just off the avenue, probably with a man to brush his clothes and tree his shoes. Instead he enters a respectably modest entrance at 71 East 59th street and ascends stairs when he wishes to reach his residence. He is quite comfortable, and that has to do—because on the floor below—in equal comfort—are his three airdales with a bought-and-paid-for janitor at their heels when they wish to cruise the streets. Poor Mr. Conway not only pays for the janitor's apartment and the food for the janitor and his two children and his wife and his wife's sister, in order to have his dogs cared for without complaint, but "I can rarely visit them," he says, "and when I come in at night and pass their floor, I have to take a limp in order not to have them recognize my step and howl all the rest of the night in consequence. It may not be an ideal arrangement for the dogs, but they get more out of it than I do."

The new "Village Polities" will open this month under the protection of the Bohemians, Inc., who will open the production at the little Village Theater

SHE TOOK HER FRIEND'S ADVICE

Now is the Best of Health
Because she took Lydia E.
Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Detroit, Mich. — "I was not feeling well for several years and never was able to eat any breakfast and always complained of a headache or tired feeling which at times required me to stop my work and rest. I have never had a physician and never took any medicine for it until you were recommended to me by a neighbor whom I used to visit frequently. I took Vegetable Compound, and now I am in the best of health and enjoy doing my work every moment of the day. It surely put life and 'pep' into my system." — Mrs. L. M. DARRAS, 46 Howard St., Detroit, Michigan.

It is not always in business that a woman is forced to give up her work on account of ill health. It is quite as often the woman who does her own work at home. When backaches and headaches drive out all ambition, when that bearing-down sensation attacks you, when you are nervous and blue, the one great help for such ailments is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

just as a matter of sentiment before bringing it up to greater seating capacity. John Murray Anderson, who has already established his productions as out of the ordinary in the way of revulsion comedies, promises something entirely new in this latest edition.

Every once in a while some smug adult person smiles at children and says, "They don't realize that these are the happiest days of their lives. Not a care in the world!" How anyone can forget the extreme seriousness of children's troubles I never could understand. Here is one instance that I hope may pierce some forgetful souls: Helen Shirk, ten years old, and Agnes her eight year old sister, of 35 West 149th street, were missing for three days. Central Park was searched and the harbor police had started dragging the lake in it, when they were found, on the top floor of a building adjacent to their home, hiding in a dory stairway. They were afraid to come out because Helen had broken a doll and its owner told her school teacher. That good disciplinarian told the child that she must either repair it or replace it. She couldn't do either and fully expecting to be sent to jail, she ran away, with her faithful little sister, and hid in the dark. It was tragedy just as real as the "happy little children" people have probably known.

A market basket full of Irish sod and a baby hawthorn trees will sail back and forth across the ocean much like the Flying Dutchman, maybe forever—or until the hawthorns grow too big to be proper passenger ship floral decorations. Miss E. A. Shanks, from Mission, Texas, arrived the other day, from Queenstown bearing her "bit of the old soil" and the tree sprigs as her dearest treasure, to be bravely transplanted in Texas. Unfortunately the ruling against all plant life from Europe to guard against disease, prevented her bringing them ashore at New York. Her grief touched one of the ship's officers so kindly that he promises to keep them aboard and give them good care. So back and forth they will travel.

Miss Billie Shaw, heretofore known only as a vaudeville dancer to the general public, blossomed forth recently as a playwright, and a very good one. Five of her plays were put on at the Apollo Theater in one week and brought the young dancer into immediate attention of the serious world of the dramas. The list included an exposition of five different types of stage art; a farce which depends upon situations of its interest; a straight comedy, in which the interest depended largely upon the dialogue, a "heart interest" drama, a novelty playlet; and a tragedy.

UNCLE TED'S BED-TIME STORIES.

A Story of a Big Sum of Money.

"Yes, you read something about that a long time ago and I remember we talked about the lot of money owed the United States by foreign countries. WHY don't they pay up?" It was Jack talking to a bunch of his schoolmates who were gathered under a big tree trying to keep cool away from the beating rays of a noon-day sun.

"It is easy enough," spoke up Uncle Ted who had been cutting the grass, "It is easy enough, I say, to talk about all this money and what we think ought to be done but we really have no right to unless we study the situation a little and learn the truth."

"Tell us something about it, Uncle Ted," said Ruth. "Any way you ought to rest from that heat."

"All right, Ruth, I'll rest from the heat, but of course I mustn't rest too much — at least I must tell a story. YOU ARE a tease, Ruth. I think the best way is to tell you what President Harding did the other day about this matter. He received a letter from the Secretary of the Treasury on the subject and after going into it carefully sent a copy to Senator Penrose, chairman of the Committee on Finance of the United States Senate, together with a letter of his own. In his letter, President Harding stated that Secretary Mellon had asked for broader powers to deal with the situation so that he could arrange for the refunding or conversion or extension of the time of payment of principal and interest on these obligations, and the adjustment of other claims of the United States against foreign governments."

"In Secretary Mellon's letter to the President the first thing he stated was the amount of money due the United States by foreign governments on account of the European war. Children, that total amount is $10,141,267,585.68! Just think of it. That money was loaned in this way: $9,435,225,329.24 was advanced to these countries under the various Liberty Loan acts. That is, the money raised by you and everybody buying Liberty Bonds. $84,093,963.55 totals the obligations received from the American Relief Administration. The amounts due to Belgium, Czechoslovakia, Estonia, France, Latvia, Lithuania, Poland, Roumania, Russia and the kingdom of the Serbs, Croats and Slovenes total $565,948,413.80 and for grain sent by the United States Grain Corporation to Armenia, Austria, Czechoslovakia, Hungary, and Poland, the debt is $56,899,879.09.

"Now, kiddies, you see the money owed on the various classes of debts is due largely from the same countries. When Secretary Mellon went into the matter he found, as he states: 'This Department is without authority to consent to any extension of the time for payment of the principal or of the interest of these obligations or to proceed with the refunding.'

Later on in his letter he said: 'In some cases the debtor nations owe large amounts to other countries as well as to the United States, and it may be advisable, and in some cases indeed necessary to consider comprehensively the entire debt of such countries, financial condition and resources so as to work out a refunding plan reasonably within the ability of such country to carry out.'

"You see, Secretary Mellon is not going into this matter as a man who is sorry for these countries, who feels we should say 'Oh! it's all right, we'll forget it.' Neither is he going to say, 'You MUST pay at once, without looking into the future to see what the result will be. He is looking at it as a successful business man and banker — a man who has always handled money matters with success."

"Doesn't he say just what he wants?" asked Jack. "Indeed he has said that. With his letter to the President he sent a draft of an act of Congress which he wants to have passed and which the President sent along to the Senate Committee with his letter. The act is short so I think I will read it to you:

"Be it enacted (etc.) that the Secretary of the Treasury, with the approval of the President, is hereby authorized from time to time to refund or convert, and to extend the time of payment of the principal or the interest or both, of any obligation of any foreign government now owing to the United States, or any obligation of any foreign government hereafter received by the United States of America arising out of the European war, into bonds or other obligations of such, or any other foreign government and from time to time to receive bonds and obligations of any foreign government in substitution for those now or hereafter held by the United States, in such form and of such terms, conditions, date or dates of maturity, and rate or rates of interest and with such security, if any, as shall be deemed for the best interests of the United States and to adjust and settle any and all claims, not now represented by bonds or obligations, which the United States of America now has or hereafter may have against any foreign government and to accept securities therefor."

"As President Harding said in his letter if Congress will 'promptly sanction such a grant of authority, the Secretary of the Treasury may proceed to the prompt exercise of the powers granted to him, and we reasonably may expect a satisfactory handling of the obligations due and the claims of our government which are awaiting settlement."

"Congress may very likely add some limitations to the act before passing it, but steps will undoubtedly be taken to get our financial relations with the Allies on a more definite and satisfactory basis."

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Washington, D. C. — "While British publicists are agitating for a cancellation of war debts and the British Government is asking delay in payment of interest on her debt to America — a shifting of war burdens to the United States — Great Britain is bending every effort to the development and maintenance of foreign trade and extension of her foreign markets," declares the Republican Publicity Association. "From the day of the signing of the armistice that nation has sought every opportunity to regain all her foreign customers, particularly where American exporters have secured some of the trade Britain had lost. The desire an dthe effort to thus restore former trade conditions and win new markets is not in itself to be censured, but American taxpayers will scarcely look with complacency upon delay in the payment of interest upon the British debt to us at the same time that Britain is expending huge sums of money to seize trade this country was enjoying."

"An impressive illustration of the methods used by Great Britain in promoting her commercial interests is seen in the subsidizing of the British coal industry. The normal production of coal in the United Kingdom is about 270,000,000 tons of which about 70,000,000 tons is exported to European and South American countries. The United States produces a little more than half a billion tons annually and exports less than 18,000,000 tons to trans-oceanic nations. Great Britain has been maintaining government control of the industry under a guarantee against loss, with the result that prior to the strike mines were market coal at less than cost of production and, according to reports from Europe, the British treasury was called upon to pay some ten million pounds sterling to make the guarantee good during the month of March. This was a subsidy of $40,000,000 in one month in an effort to enable British coal to regain or retain its markets in Europe. The period of control has expired, the strike has just been settled, and British officials have agreed to a resumption of the subsidy."

"It is estimated that, at the most, American coal would come into successful competition with British coal to the extent of only 10,000,000 tons in a year, or about one-seventh of the quantity Great Britain exports. 'No exception can be taken to any effort Great Britain may make to develop her industries and her commerce provided she does it with her own money and her own ingenuity. But in these days American taxpayers are going down to their pockets for money to pay the interest on Liberty Bonds, some five billion dollars of which were issued to raise money to loan to Great Britain, and the debtor is not paying the interest. In other words, the money that is due the United States as interest is being withheld and used to subsidize a coal industry in order that the United States may not establish closer commercial relations with some of the European nations. "This is only one instance of the British policy, but it one that will not tend in the least to strengthen the plea of the internationalists for the cancellation of war debts, or the proposal for an extension of time for interest payments."

ONLY FOUR CAMPS TO REMAIN.

Washington, July 12. — The War Department is formulating definite plans for the abandonment of Camp Sherman.

A committee of the General Staff working out a radical retrenchment scheme, made necessary by the radical appropriation by Congress, has prepared a plan which contemplates the retention of only four of the twelve large army camps.

These are the infantry camps known as Camp Dix N. J., Camp Travis, Tex.; Camp Lewis, Washington, and the artillery camp known as Camp Knox, Ky.

By means of a small piece of machinery, consisting of a pump connected with a steam chamber attached to the locomotive it is estimated that $1,600,000 will be saved annually by the Pennsylvania Railroad. The principle of the new device is making new steam from old and enables the railroad to curtail its coal bill ten per cent.
